Reason For Special Frankfort School Election Saturday

The Frankfort School board has called a special election for Saturday Sept. 3 for the purpose of submitting a proposition to the voters to increase the rate of the educational levy from $1.00 per $100.00 of assessed valuation to $1.50 per $100.00 of assessed valuation. This increase has become necessary because of the increase in cost of operation of the school, and has been further made necessary because of the reduction in the valuation of the property of the district about five years ago. The assessed valuation at that time was reduced from $700,000 to $400,000 making a reduction in the funds available to operate the schools on $300,000. Due to the increased costs and the reduction in assessed valuation the board was forced to issue $2000. in tax anticipation warrants this year against the educational fund. These tax warrants are a prior lien against the taxes available for the educational fund this year and must be paid before any money will be available for current expenses.

As a result the school board is faced with the alternative of raising additional funds or eventually closing the school. These funds can be raised in two ways, either by increasing the educational fund levy from the maximum of $1.00 to $1.50 by special election or by having the assessor increase the amount of the assessed valuation of all property as was done in Cook County.

The educational levy represents $1.00 out of our levy of $4.00 per $100.00 of assessed valuation or one fourth of the total taxes raised for the various taxing bodies. This rate of $4.00 is the lowest in years and is made possible because of the increase in value of the railroad and utility properties in this district. Thus if a tax payer pays a tax of $40.00 on $1000. assessed valuation his increase will be only $5.00.

The building fund is maintaining itself and it is not necessary to increase it in any way. By increasing the educational fund levy only the educational fund is increased and this can be accomplished with the minimum cost to taxpayers by increasing this levy only. If the total assessed valuation is increased or a one hundred percent valuation is adopted as was done in Cook County, all the other taxing bodies will receive a corresponding increase, which is not necessary at this time. If this is done by increasing the general assessed valuation a tax payer now paying $40.00 will pay an increase of at least $20.00.

The directors strongly urge that the voters approve an increase in the educational levy only.

The election will be held at the School auditorium tomorrow, Saturday, from 6 to 8 pm.

Flying Attorney Dies of Accident Injuries

Attorney Fred Walters, aged 74, prominent Will County lawyer, died at Silver Cross hospital last Thursday night as a result of critical injuries sustained in an automobile accident the week before.

Attorney Walters was widely known as the flying attorney having made over 200,000 miles by air and received special recognition from the Air Transport company.

He was engaged in the legal profession for many years and was actively associated with Fraternal and civic affairs of Will County.

He was a very active worker in the Republican party. He made a great many friends who regret his passing. Funeral services were conducted at the Walters home in Lockport last Sunday afternoon.

A wedding reception and dinner were served in the home of the bride's parents in Tinley Park following the ceremony.

Last Saturday evening, a dance was held in the Hatch hall in Mokena in honor of the new Mr. and Mrs. Yunker.

Robert W. Funk of Tinley Reported Missing In Action

Wednesday morning Mr. and Mrs. John C. Funk of Tinley Park received a government telegram saying that their son Lt. Robert W. Funk, was missing in action over Germany since September 13th.

He was promoted from 2nd to 1st Lieutenant August 31. According to news received from an Eighth Air Force Bomber Station in England, Lt. Funk, 26, was awarded the Oak Leaf Cluster to the air medal, equivalent to another award of the medal for "Courage, coolness and skill" displayed on bombing attacks over Nazi Europe. He was a pilot at that time on a B-24 Liberator with an Eighth Air Force Bomber group commanded by Col. Frank P. Bostrom of Bangor, Me.

Prior to entering the army air forces in February, 1943 Lt. Funk was employed as an aircraft assembler by the Consolidated Aircraft Corp. in San Diego, Cal.

The Funk family has received word from families of other members of the bomber group that they had received similar messages regarding the missing men.

COLLECTING CLOTHING FOR REHABILITATION ADM.

Following liberation of areas in Europe and with the approach of winter, the need for clothing becomes one of the pressing problems. Part of this relief problem will be met by the collection of clothing under the direction of the United Nations Relief and Rehabilitation Administration in every American community with the cooperation of the churches of all faiths.

During the week of October 1 to 8 clothing will be received at St. John's church in Mokena and in Gus Brauns Confectionery store. Clothing should be wrapped lightly for local handling. Articles will be classified and packed securely for shipment at the local receiving stations.

All kinds of useful wearable garments are needed. Shoes are not to be sent. Underwear and all types of cotton garments should be washed before they are donated. They need not be ironed. There is a special need for infant's garments, particularly knit goods. Men's and boys garments overcoats, suits, sweaters, jackets, shirts, overalls; underwear. Women's and girls garments. Coats, jackets, sweaters, dresses, underwear, aprons, jumpers; smocks, nightwear.

Bedding, blankets, shawls, sheets, pillow cases, quilts.

Millions will suffer unless you help. Give all you can spare.

Ingalls Shepherd Co., Blood Bank Saves Worker's Life

The story of Edwin Boicken of Beecher, Ill. will go down in medical history as a miracle, but in the annals of industry, it will reveal the brotherly kindness expressed by fellow workers.

It began in January, 1944. Boicken, 28, was employed by the Ace Power and Equipment Co., and assigned to the Ingalls-Shepherd Division of the Wyman-Gordon Co., where new hammers were being installed to increase the production of aircraft forgings. At that time, his health gave way to a serious stomach ailment. Within seven months' time he lost 72 pounds. Weighing only 110, he entered a hospital, August 9. For a period of ten days blood transfusions were used to give him strength to undergo an operation.

At the cost of the life-sustaining fluid was mounting, Boicken grew worried. He had been supporting his elderly mother and his finances were limited. Unaware of the blood donors group recently organized by the Ingalls-Shepherd Employees' Association, he expressed his concern to his brother in law, Ted Horner, a steam plant employee there. Horner told him of the employees' blood bank and how it was also available free of charge to relatives of employees.

Within 24 hours, Wyman-Gordon volunteers were coming to Boicken's aid. These people gave enough blood to replace the ten pints already used by the sick man. He was operated on August 18. Surgeons found it necessary to remove several parts of his digestive tract including his stomach. They claim it was the first operation of its kind performed, and as Boicken gained steadily, they nicknamed him "Miracle Boy."

Following the operation Boicken lived ten days without food or water. Blood, blood and more blood was fed into his veins. There were 16 transfusions in all. "I am very grateful to those people," he told Horner, "and in a few weeks I'm going out to the plant and thank them in person."

His fiancée, Lucille Fancher, of Steger, Ill., will probably come with him, because she has been his constant companion during his illness, and she knows how much his life depended upon the unstinted supply of plasma made possible by the Wyman-Gordon blood bank.

More than two thousand employees of the Ingalls-Shepherd Division have had their blood typed according to the three leading systems. These people are ready to meet the emergency of blood transfusions as the need arises among fellow employees and members of their families. The plant's first aid station serves as the donor's headquarters. There volunteers are assigned in a systematic method and an individual record is kept of each donor. Since its inception in May, 1944, six people have benefited by the plan.

months of foreign service to his credit, and has chalked up 35 combat missions.

Before coming to the China-Burma India theater to fight the Japanese, he saw service in North Africa and participated in missions over such heavily defended targets as El Alamein, Mareth Line and Sfax, all in direct support of the famous Eight Army which drove Rommel and his Africa Corps out of Africa.

Sgt. Mangun recalls his closest call as being the time when his plane participated in a raid over the Mareth Line. One of the engines of his bomber was shot out and had to return to its base on only one engine. Of the 12 holes counted in the ship, 1 was through his turret only a few inches from his head.

A member of the armed forces since June 1941, the Sergeant has a brother Wilmer L. Mangun in the U. S. Navy Sea Bees stationed in the South Pacific.

Yanks Enter Germany as Siegfried Fort Falls

Two spearheads of the U. S. First army, under Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, enter Germany south of Aachen and beyond Trier, as Siegfried fort falls to the allies. Photo shows the spearhead of tanks stretching out into the horizon across Flanders field as they enter German territory. In the first push they reached the outskirts of Aachen, meeting with opposition within the Siegfried line.

France Wrecked as German Troops Retreat

When the American Seventh army moved into Marseille, France, they found ships scuttled in the harbor as well as the city looted and buildings, bridges and rail terminals destroyed. In Paris the women and children had ripped up the paving blocks from the streets to build barricades behind which they fought for liberation of their capital before Allied forces entered the city to help them.

Italian Waffle-Like Trenches

The slit trenches that cut up an area "some place in Italy" in a waffle-like pattern are being used by the Air WACs stationed near the headquarters of the 12th air force in Italy. This new type of trench is said to offer considerable more protection, and is harder to hit from air.

Liberators Who Came Home

Among the British forces that liberated Brussels, capital of Belgium, was a brigade of Belgians, members of which are being given an enthusiastic welcome home here by the populace of Brussels as they drove into the city. They had escaped to England, and there had been organized and trained under their own colors.

First in Germany

Lieut. Gen. Courtney H. Hodges, commander of the American First army, which had the honor to be the first of the Allied forces to make a permanent penetration into Germany. General Hodges' troops were also the first Yanks to enter Paris after the French underground and fought off the Nazis.

A Mechanical 'Whiz'

Jack Butler, 11, of Chicago, assembled a carburetor of several hundred parts in one hour—a record for an expert. In a demonstration at the Bendix Aviation corporation plant he used only a new "exploded view" diagram guide.

Invaders at West Wall

This map shows approximate location and direction of the principal drives against Germany's Siegfried line, or west wall. The American First army drives ahead after liberating the capital of the Duchy. The Third army was slowed up due to supply difficulty. The British Second army has the northernmost end of the line to handle.

No Gasoline Problem in Paris

Anybody who owns a bicycle in Paris these days is lucky. Bikes are the only means of transportation, outside of walking, as there is no gasoline for the few cars left in the French capital. Above is a typical scene in a Paris street with business people bound for their offices and shops on their trusty wheels.

Trial of Former French Militia

The photo shows a scene during the military trial of the members of the former French Militia in Grenoble, France. On the findings six men were condemned to death, two were sentenced to hard labor for life, and two more to five years' imprisonment. The French underground has turned hundreds of prisoners over to the courts for trial. While underground punishment has resulted—most of prisoners were legally brought to justice.

B-29 Secret Armament Revealed

The armament of the B-29 super-fortress has been revealed to the public. All turrets and guns are remotely controlled electrically. Gunners in the different parts of the ship can operate all the guns and the fire-power can be instantaneously concentrated on any approaching enemy. They were first used against Japs.

German Each Year

MR. WINKLE GOES TO WAR

By THEODORE PRATT

W.N.U. RELEASE

THE STORY THUS FAR: Forty-four-year-old Wilbert Winkle, who operates a repair shop in the alley back of his home, is notified by his draft board that he is in I-A. He breaks the bad news to Amy, his domineering wife, who becomes suddenly tender. Mr. Winkle is sent to Camp Squibb, a thousand miles from home. After graduating from Motor Mechanics school, Mr. Winkle goes home on a furlough. Amy hardly knows him, and his dog, Penelope, barks at him furiously. After returning to camp Mr. Winkle and his friend, Mr. Tinker, are sent to a point of embarkation. Soon they find themselves on the high seas, in a big convoy. They meet some of their friends aboard and are encouraged.

CHAPTER XI

At lunch time they were at last told where they were going. Nothing was said about the main convoy. From the beginning it had been planned to send them to the island of Talizo, one of the steppingstones in the retrieving of certain precious stones stolen by the Japanese when no one was looking.

The south end of the fifty-mile-long island had been captured by American forces, along with an airfield conveniently just completed by the Japs, who still held the northern half of Talizo. They would land some time the next morning.

Mr. Winkle searched in his guidebook for the entry under Talizo. To his satisfaction he found that the island had cannibals. It was, in fact, noted for them.

Late that afternoon a collection of dark dots came out of the sinking sun ahead of them. The gun crews of their own and the other ships sprang to their stations, alert and tense. But soon word was passed about that these were their own planes, come to protect them in that most dangerous of all times, dusk on the sea.

No enemy, from under, on, or over the sea appeared either that night or at dawn when the planes returned to take up their vigil and escort the convoy to port.

Land, now made out boldly, was seen to be a low-lying shore reaching up abruptly to a towering volcanic mountain ridge running along the far side of Talizo. It was a scene of such beauty as to be very nearly unreal. As they approached closer, here and there the white wisp of a waterfall could be seen throwing itself down from the mountain jungles and disappearing into the thick green growth below.

That war and the killing and maiming of men could exist on this peaceful looking island did not seem credible.

Looking at it, all you wanted to do was to land here, among the palm trees on the white sandy shore and spend the rest of your life.

Mr. Winkle and his several thousand companions gazed at it with awe and wonderment. The island was almost the thing for which Mr. Winkle searched, and he wondered if he would find it here.

Mr. Winkle's impression of landing was not one of danger, but of fascination.

Their troopship was the first vessel through the mine field and the opening made by a small tug drawing back the boom of the submarine net. Almost before the anchor was down in the harbor, landing nets were being thrown over the sides of the ship and boats lowered.

They climbed down, packing themselves in the lifeboats. Three of these, tied together, were pulled by a launch to one of the piers. The men stared at a half-sunken supply ship they passed. Some of them identified shore batteries placed on either point of the harbor.

It was hot on land, after the sea, as they marched through the town.

Passing by the thatched huts, they saw that most of them were vacant. Only here and there were they occupied by brown-skinned people whose large dark eyes gazed at them apathetically. A few of them were girls clad in a simple garment of printed cloth which left one shoulder bare and outlined the rest of their slim bodies to their knees.

"Whadda you know?" breathed Tinker. "Whadda you know?"

"Now, now," cautioned Mr. Winkle. "We're here to protect them, that's all."

"Sure," said Mr. Tinker. "Sure." He twisted his head, to keep in sight as long as he could what he looked forward to protecting.

On the far side of the village the jungle began, a monstrous growth of palms, lianas, bushes, vivid flowers, breadfruit trees, and banana plants. Into this they marched along a narrow white shell road that threw up heat in nearly suffocating waves. They began to sweat.

They came to a tent so cleverly camouflaged that they failed to make it all out at once. It was painted the exact color of the vegetation. Limbs of trees grew over its roof. Nets, to which branches were attached and sprayed a permanent green, covered it in other places.

The jungle was honeycombed with such tents, some of them small, some of them large enough to house a small circus. Again Mr. Winkle felt safe. He told himself nothing could happen to him in such a hidden installation. He had half-expected to make a landing amidst a hail of bullets and exploding bombs.

At their first meal in the mess tent they tasted new foods, potato-like taro, papaya, and wild chicken. Mr. Tinker spat most of them out and took to what he called civilized dishes also provided. Mr. Winkle swallowed them, if not with relish, at least with pleasure in their proving how definitely he was on a tropic island.

The newcomers were asked such a barrage of questions that they had little chance to put any of their own. The few they managed to get in were mostly answered with a lifting of the shoulders. One man jerked his thumb toward the north and said, "We're just sitting each other out."

The Messrs. Winkle and Tinker reported to one of the shops, where Mr. Tinker was open-mouthed at the equipment and Mr. Winkle was impressed.

Trucks, reconnaissance and command cars, and jeeps and peeps were driven into spacious tents which held as complete equipment as to be found at home. The canvas sides were rolled up for ventilation, giving them a pleasant air of being outdoors. The familiar smell of oiled machinery and carbon monoxide fumes reached their nostrils. These perfumes were more heartening than the sweet, curious odors of the jungle with which they competed.

Men like themselves, trained as they had been, following the same procedures, labored over the vehicles, one of which had its entire rear end missing as if it had been torn off with a violent hand. The men looked up, gazing idly, curiously, or with interest at the newcomers. Only once did they pause in their quick, deft attentions to the motors. A radio, abruptly turned on, buzzed and crackled for a moment, and then from it came the clear, assured announcement "This is the United States of America."

The men went still for an instant, taking it in. They glanced at each other and some of them smiled briefly, almost shyly. As the short-wave program went on, giving the news from home, they returned to work with an added zest.

Mr. Winkle couldn't suppress a tingle that went through him and a choking in his throat. It quieted the queasy feeling in his stomach. It made him know that the jungle of Talizo, at least this part of it and more to come, was the U. S. A.

When a mail went out, Mr. Winkle was allowed to write only the barest information to Amy. He refrained from saying much for the double reason of living up to the censorship regulations and not caring to frighten her. He omitted certain things he discovered in his paradise, such as malaria, dysentery, white ants with a pincers attack worse than any war maneuver ever conceived, and mosquitoes so profuse that a net over the bed served only to trap them inside where they could concentrate their attack.

It must, he thought, be enough of a strain for Amy not even to know where he was beyond the fact that he was in the South Seas area. He kept to the cheery things, such as the taste of roasted wild pig, and the crawfish, shrimp, and prawns. He described the flowers, and dwelt on the hibiscus, which he thought went better with the tropics than anything else. He told her about the parrots and cockatoos of the jungle, and how the air was filled with the color of flashing wings.

He said there were no cannibals about just then, but he hoped eventually to see one. He described war as being nothing at all like what he had expected, and assured her that he would be back some day. "No Jap bullet has my name on it," he wrote.

He pondered on whether or not he should leave this in. It was boasting a little, for he had yet to hear a shot fired on either side. In the end he let the statement go, deciding it was reassuring more than anything else. And he didn't want to give her the impression that he really wasn't in the war.

Mr. Tinker was in it so little that he didn't think much of Talizo as a battleground. When a truck was brought in with a few bullet holes through its body, it was a matter of some curiosity. And the bullets had been fired so far away that the actual fighting seemed remote and unreal.

They saw nothing of the enemy and heard nothing of him. There were so few evidences of his existence that they were hardly worth while. Even the two cots in their tent hadn't been vacated by dead men, but by men who had contracted tropic fever and been sent home. The native girls ran when Mr. Tinker made approaches; they didn't trust any human being in a soldier's uniform.

All in all, Mr. Tinker was very much disgusted. He said he might as well be home working at his plumbing, and he told Mr. Winkle he might as well be home in his shop.

Mr. Winkle, on the other hand, could not conceal from himself the fact that he was pleased. He breathed easier, thinking that if this was all there was to it, it wasn't so bad. To the north, he knew, lay the airfield and the main part of the American forces of occupation. And farther on there was jungle fighting where men stalked each other through the undergrowth and sniped from the trees. But this was not his business, and he came into contact with none of those whose affair it was.

Mr. Tinker hoped to be sent north on some mission. "It's the only way I can see for me to get me my Jap," he said.

Mr. Winkle didn't understand how he could expect this. "You'd be on other duty," he pointed out.

"Not all the time I won't," Mr. Tinker said. "You wouldn't tell anybody," he pleaded, "if I went off for a while, would you, Pop?"

"You won't do any such thing," Mr. Winkle scolded.

Mr. Tinker remained silent, looking glum but determined.

Mr. Tinker had only contempt for the south tip of the island, to which he and Mr. Winkle were sent several times to rescue vehicles in difficulties. He could hope to find no Japs there. The shore was lined with American machine-gun fox holes, and it was here that the Alphabet, to his chagrin, was stationed.

Sergeant Czeideskowski and his crew, including Freddie and Jack, agreed with Mr. Tinker about their part in the war. Nothing, they felt, would happen in the portion given to them. They had come thousands of miles to sit and watch and wait for action that would never materialize.

They — with Mr. Winkle — overlooked the fact that when you are in a war you are in a war.

Awakened early one morning, Mr. Winkle and Mr. Tinker were told to report to the orderly tent on the double-quick. Their Commanding Officer looked grim when he told them

"Hop in a jeep and get down to Post Number Nine. Repair a com-

Mr. Winkle was allowed to write only the barest information to Amy.

mand car you'll find there and bring it back. Don't waste any time. There's mist off the shore. Anything can come out of it."

Mr. Winkle's heart leaped as he saluted with Mr. Tinker and hurried out.

"Something," said Mr. Tinker, "is up."

Mr. Winkle was very much afraid that this might be so. "Nine," he said. "That's the Alphabet."

At the motor park tent they found the men on duty there had the same tense attitude. "You'd better take some extra cartridge clips," they were told. These were given to them.

They drove out. Mr. Winkle didn't like the extra cartridge clips, but he did feel better to have rifles slung alongside the bouncing car.

When they reached the road running south along the shore, they saw the mist. Between hillocks of the beach ridge they could make it out standing like a wall several hundred yards offshore, mysterious, dangerous, unreasonable.

It made Mr. Tinker enthusiastic. "The Japs know we're about ready to push them in the face in the north," he held. "Mebbe they'll take this chance."

JESUS THE LIGHT OF THE WORLD

LESSON TEXT—John 9:1-7, 13, 34-41.
GOLDEN TEXT—I am the light of the world: he that followeth me shall not walk in the darkness, but shall have the light of life.—John 8:12.

Light is a fascinating subject for study, and especially is that true when we speak of spiritual light. In the lessons of the next three months we are to see the light which Christ sheds on the problems of life today.

How appropriate to begin that study by recognizing Christ as the one true "light of the world." He it is who brought us out of darkness, and it is from His light that we too are lighted and become God's lights in this wicked world (Matt. 5:14-16).

The story which presents our Lord as the light and the light giver is that of the man born blind. Four choices confront us.

I. Guesswork or God's Glory (vv. 1-5).

Men have an inordinate curiosity about those who are handicapped or crippled. Even the disciples of Jesus had fallen into the sad tendency of seeing in one who needed their help, a case for theological speculation rather than one in whom God's glory could be revealed.

Need without power to help is a depressing thing, and may encourage man to a bit of scientific or religious guesswork. Here is a specimen—let us examine it. How did this happen? Who was responsible? But when we know the power of God, guessing and theorizing is gone. Here is help!

Jesus declared a great truth here—suffering is not necessarily the result of sin, nor for the purpose of judgment or punishment. This man was here that God might show His grace and power.

Those who suffer in our day may be the means of declaring God's glory, either by His deliverance from pain and sorrow, or by His grace to bear the burden graciously and for His glory.

II. Impossibility or Obedience (vv. 6-7).

"Clay cannot bring sight to a man's eyes—anyone knows that! All such a covering can do is to make the darkness of sightless eyes even more impenetrable." The blind man might have reasoned that way. He would have been entirely logical in so doing—and he would have gone right on being blind.

It is possible to thrust from you God's richest blessing by insisting that God's work be done in accord with your ability to understand.

But the blind man chose the obedience of faith—"he went . . . and washed, and came seeing." Jesus is the light of the world to those who will believe. The blind man found it so—we may also find it to be true, if we will believe. The impossible becomes possible—with God, for "with God all things are possible." Jesus said it (Matt. 19:26); let us believe it and act on it.

III. Controversy or Confession (vv. 13, 34-38).

This is a great chapter, one in which we see the glory of faith contrasted with the controversial smallness of unbelieving men. The Pharisees were religious men, but they hated Jesus (a combination possible even in our day), so they sought in every possible way to discredit Him, to deny the miracle, and to destroy the one who was healed.

Against that dark background the light of this man's faith shines the more brightly. The more they tried to confuse him, the deeper they entrapped themselves, as he answered in simple faith.

Testimony is a tremendously effective thing, even though it must cling to the elementary and blessed truth "I was blind, now I see" (v. 25). But note that he went on, and under the tender ministry of Jesus, he received his spiritual, as well as his physical, sight. "I believe"—what majestic words, what transforming words, what world-shaking words! Friend, do you believe on Christ? If not, will you do it right now?

IV. Healing or Hardening (vv. 39-41).

The same sun which softens the wax hardens the mud. The light which attracts some out of the dark places causes others to shrink farther into the shadows lest they have to give up their dark deeds and thoughts.

So it was in this case. The blind man who had faith, saw, and that sight was the sight of the soul as well as of the body. But the embittered Pharisees were only hardened in their sin. Because they boasted of their spiritual sight which made the ministry of Jesus unnecessary (as they thought!), there was nothing for Him to do but to leave them in their darkness.

The light of Christ, which is to shine on the problems of life in the lessons of the three months ahead of us, will either bring men to the light in faith, or confirm them in their unbelief. Which is it to be in your case and in that of those to whom you minister?

SEWING CIRCLE PATTERNS

Pretty and Comfortable Frock A Smart Collarless Cardigan

Smart Two-Piece

THE smartest of the high-priced suits are collarless—and American women will take this cardigan fashion to their hearts instantly! You just can't have too many separate cardigan jackets, suits and two-piecers in this style.

Pattern No. 8660 is in sizes 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36, short sleeves, requires 4 yards of 39-inch material; 1/2 yard contrast for collar.

Due to an unusually large demand and current war conditions, slightly more time is required in filling orders for a few of the most popular pattern numbers.

It's Simple Furniture With Frills, Ruffles

IF YOU have been wondering if quaintness, frills and ruffles were going into the decorating ash can after the war, the answer is—no. There will be many strictly modern rooms but there will be rooms also in which all the war years' pent-up longing will burst forth in the most romantic versions of the traditional Home, sweet Home with variations according to taste.

Period themes and quaintness will be stepped up to have a dramatic quality. Modern ideas will creep in and add to this effect. Simple furniture will be built in and fabrics will be cut and sewn especially to fit the spaces they are to fill. The bed curtains for the slanting wall in the sketch are an example—and the triangular shaped window curtains to give extra fullness. Frills will be even fuller than those of our dreams.

NOTE—Why not start your dream room now with a skirted blanket chest like the one in this sketch? It is grand to have extra covers handy on chilly nights and the padded top makes a comfortable seat. Pattern 259 gives complete and fully illustrated directions with detailed list of materials needed for making the chest, full skirt and top cushion. To Whom it May Concern:

I am writing to thank all of you thoughtful people for the lovely birthday candy I received today. In fact, it was just fifteen minutes ago that I opened it, and now all that remains is the empty box. I managed to get myself a couple of pieces before the boys took over and it was very, very good candy. My buddies will agree with me on that point. I imagine you have your hands full trying to keep up with all the changes of addresses of the other boys, especially if they all move around as much as I do. However, there has not been a delay of any length in the newspaper delivery. I enjoy reading it very much and can never thank you enough for having it sent to me. I'll close now, and wish you all the best of luck.

Sincerely yours,
Wesley Ashford

The Red Cross rooms have re-opened being open from 1 to 4 o'clock. Workers are needed to make surgical dressings. Mesdames Emma Pelkey, Irene Buckler, Madeline Miller and Kathryn Frey are the committee in charge.

was celebrated Sunday with a surprise party. Those present were Dorothy and Ted Volke, Jackie Wilson Marilyn Pollard, Annabelle McKenzie, Carolyn Oliver, Ruth Schaffer, and Brabara, Jimmy and Robt. Hauser. Delicious refreshments were served. Everyone heard about the party in school Monday.

Mrs. Wieber did some Red Cross shopping for us. Now we can complete the work that has been started. We are very grateful to her.

Thanks to Mrs. Krzemka and Mrs. Blaylock we have enough gum to make Halloween favors for soldiers' hospitals.

Every Tuesday and Thursday from 4 to 5:30 the older pupils do Red Cross work. We are now working on Halloween menu covers, posters and tray favors and covers.

Patsy Hunter entered the first grade.

Many of the ladies in our district are making bed slippers for the Junior Red Cross. We have 90 pairs to be made.

Oliver, Ronnie Schafer, Geo. Edstrom, Ethel Wieber, Carolyn, Rosemary Schafer and Wilma Pollard were A Citizens this week.

Muriel Burian, second grade and Annabelle McKenzie, sixth grade, have had all spelling units perfect this year.

Wednesday was a holiday, teachers went to institute.

Mrs. Lockwood went to Joliet to get Red Cross material. She took Rosemary Schafer with her. Rosemary looked after Junior Red Cross work.

WARTIME IDEAS FOR POULTRYMEN

POULTRY HOUSE LIGHTING
KEEPS 'EM LAYING LONGERSteps up production and profits

One of the secrets of successful poultry raising is in knowing how to keep your chickens working more and yourself working less.

Poultry house lighting is an easy way for you to make your layers put in more overtime on those wartime jobs of theirs—producing more food for Victory... and boosting egg profits. Just one or two small bulbs and a home-made automatic time switch (like either of those pictured below) are all that's needed to get them up earlier and to keep them working longer on the egg production line.

Power isn't just limited to the lighting job in the hen house. In almost every phase of poultry raising it has a time- and work-saving chore to do. It operates electric brooders that cut chick losses... pumps and warms the water that builds more and bigger eggs... grinds and mixes feed efficiently and quickly—and does all this with a minimum of work on your part.

Build an easy-to-make automatic time switch
—a silent bugler that gets them up early!

ORLAND SERVICEMEN'S NEWS
Mrs. H. Kruspe, chairman

Donations received this week:
American Legion Auxiliary (proceeds from bake sale) $37.63
Mrs. Alice Sorley, 2.00
Mrs. Thomas Wheeler, 1.00
Sept. 18, 1944
Camp Gordon, Va.

Dear Mrs. Kruspe:

Will start this letter by apologizing for not writing sooner and thanking you for the cigarettes and candy. They reached me in Texas and the fudge lasted just long enough to get the paper off. I received the Orland paper while in Texas and want to thank you for that too. I haven't received it here yet, probably because I didn't send my new address. The Army is trying to make a mechanic out of me now instead of an infantry man. This work is a lot easier than the infantry, but it is pretty greasy sometimes. Tell all the boys when they go in the Army to stay out of Georgia, because all there is here is hot sun and sand. Give my regards to everybody, and here's hoping this war ends shortly. Thanks again for everything.

Respectfully yours,
Cpl. Albert Wheeler

SERVICEMEN'S NEWS

San Francisco, Cal.
Dear Citizens Tinley Park Service Men and Women Committee:

This is to thank you for the newspaper you have been sending me and to let you know how very much I appreciate it. It certainly does wonders for a person in the service so far away from home. It helps to keep the morale up and how.

California is a simply grand state. It isn't too hot here in San Francisco in the summer and it isn't too cool in the winter, and of course you do get very much excited over the graceful palm trees swaying in the cool ocean breeze.

San Francisco, as you may or may not know, is built on seven hills, so naturally they use cable street cars to go up and down them. They are the most interesting means of transportation here I believe I know.

We have small mountains on three sides of the city and the Bay on the west side. It is very picturesque to come down to the coast for a wonderful swim and feel you are enjoying the cool waters of the Pacific ocean. There is also a fascinating South American atmosphere here that take you into another world.

One of the most beautiful sights is coming over the Oakland-San Francisco bridge at night where you can see all the colored lights shining like stars against a soft dark blue background, and it gives you a wonderful feeling inside to know that surrounding each light lit so gay some soul must exist there. Even the splashing dark waters underneath the bridge reflects the rainbow affect from the shore.

Am ashamed to admit that I have not seen the Golden Gate Bridge yet but presume it must be more attractive than the Oakland San Francisco bridge as it is the more famous of the two.

But I have seen the Golden Gate Park, which consists of a forest of large green trees, a sort of picnic grove for families to come to for peace and relaxation. A real haven for war workers, no kidding. Yes, California is over run these days with people desiring peace from working overtime and trying to keep the Axis on the run.

There is one thing I'm not sure whether I like or not, San Francisco always looks as though a parade had gone thru the city. Papers here and there, with lots of nightclubs and places of amusement always open some clean and some not so clean. It is a real western city.

Well, as I am at work while I am writing this letter guess had better get on the beam now and finish my job. With lots of luck to you and bye.

Sincerely,

82c Blanche Mary Carr
P. S. I might add that the Bay Bridge is the longest in the world and that I am stationed at the largest Naval supply depot in the world.

Dear Friends:

Just a few lines to let one and all know I'm fine and as well as well can be. But as usual there isn't a lot to write about, that will get by the censor, except a slight change in my address and that is from Co. D to B.

Well from what I hear and read "and dream too" it looks like all of that 800 population I used to know are all wearing uniforms now leaving the old home town quite bare now. As yet I have not met any of the fellows or girls, so I would like to say Hello and good luck to all of them. So in closing I remain,

Sincerely yours,
Wm. E. Burleson

Dear Friends:

I am very sorry I did not write sooner but they keep us pretty busy down here in basic training. This is a nice camp only it is very hot down here, it is very seldom under 100.

I want to thank you very much for the cigarettes they came in very handy. I am getting the Tinley Park Times regularly. It sure is swell to read about good old Tinley. I expect to be sent to a new camp shortly.

Thanks a lot for what you are doing for us fellows. We really appreciate iate it.

As ever,

Bill Wannemacher

Dear Friends:

Just a line to let you know that I am still thinking of you. I've been traveling the east coast up and down pretty much and seeing many historical places. This is to let you know that I receive and look forward to the Times very much. You'd be surprised at how much news I derive from it.

Also some time ago I received six packages of cigarettes, which my room mates enjoyed very much, as I don't smoke. Thank you very much for your thoughtfulness.

I imagine it's out there in the sun and everyone is quite busy. We are having a heated argument and I'm itching to join.

Sincerely,
Irene Hartman

Citizens Service Comm.

Thanks a lot for your letter and package, in the last two months I have been moving around so much that it's been hard to accomplish any thing. H. A. Valkenburgh is my young brother who is making a fine record for himself in the Navy.

The Tinley Park Times comes as regular as clock work every week, and although I don't know any people in Tinley I find it very interesting. The weather down here is very hot and dry around 100 degrees F all the time.

Thanks again to you and the Citizens Service Committee.

Dear Mr. Semmler:

I've tried my best to keep you and the folks in Tinley Park posted as to my new address but it seems I've been sort of a gypsy. I look forward to reading the Tinley Park Times and reading about the folks I know. Your paper has been a real enjoyment and I hope you can continue sending it to me. My new address is on the envelope, but I'll not guarantee it will stay the same.

I've had some experiences all right but writing about myself is the most monotonous thing I've ever done. I've received the Air Medal and the DFC but next year maybe the war will end then I'll tell you all how it happened. Just an accident I guess. Hope all the other men from Tinley are as lucky as I was. Just tell them hello for me and all the folks in Tinley who are the ones who should get the medals.

As ever,

John E. Gotham, 2nd Lt. A. C.

Somewhere in France

Sept. 4, 1944

Hello Mr. Semmler:

Just a few lines to say, hello and to let you know I am OK. Have been able to visit Versailles, Paris and many other places too numerous to mention. Paris is really a wonderful place and the people there are really more than happy to see us. It is really the place to meet nice people altho one may not understand them. You meet quite a few who can speak English and they in turn act as an interpreter. We have been talking to some of the people and they tell us even tho they lived right in Paris it was the first time they were out of the streets in four years. The Germans were very strict and the people were afraid to even venture out of doors. At the present time one cannot buy anything as the shops are still closed. Saw Eiffel tower, Arc de Triumph, Grave of the Unknown Soldier, and the Palace at Versailles.

I only wish that all of you people could see the lovely sights over here. I hope I shall be able to see more of Paris so I can really say that I was there. We are kept quite busy but the way things are running one must expect to be kept very busy. I sure hope this whole affair is soon over so we can all come back home to our own parents and families. We are very lucky we are living in a large chateau and it is really very nice. We live in very nice rooms and altho the windows are broken it sure beats living in a foxhole or a tent. It seems to us as tho Gen. Patton is trying to win this war by himself as he is really pushing his tanks along.

With his tanks and our planes we are really raising hell with the Germans. The people of Paris cleaner out most of the Germans before we even arrived here. We are having very good food and we are now eating fresh vegetables and white beans. We are able to buy some good wines here now altho it is quite strong it is very good. We had some real Champagne a few days ago. It is fairly cheap and it is really a luxury. A French civilian has just brought us in a full basket of tomatoes. We give them a few cigarettes and tobacco. He said he would bring some cognac tomorrow. Well I just can't think of much more to say so I will close for now hoping that these few lines find you all in the best of health.

As a friend,
Cpl. Max Williams

The following letter is from Seaman Russell Bennett sent last week to his parents, Mr. and Mrs. Geo. Bennett of Mokena:

Sept. 11, 1944

Dear Folks:

These and similar articles appeared in almost all the first rate papers all over the country except Chicago. So far be it from me to pass up any of this well placed glory. Am sending these copies for you to get an idea of what you have missed by living in an area where politics and graft come before war news and various other forms of news that would undoubtedly be of an interest to you.

Yours,
Russ

Copy of dispatch written by Thos. Wolf, NEA Press Correspondent. (Editors Note: We herewith publish the 1st of the three articles which Russell so thoughtfully sent home. The other two will follow soon. We are glad to have them. The U. S. S. Herndon, aboard which this story was written, led the naval assault on the Continent.)

ABOARD THE U. S. S. HERNDON, D Day (delayed). It looks easy in retrospect. It's now sundown of D Day and the HERNDON has yet to fire her first round of anti-aircraft ammunition.

Yes it looks easy now. But it didn't look easy when they briefed us. This 1650 ton ship was scheduled to lead the assault. She was to sail to within two miles of the mightiest fortress in history. We were to have a ringside seat, all right—"bald headed row", as Lt. Douglas Chamberlin, Seattle, Wash. somewhat tartly called our position.

Known enemy weapons within range of our position would include two batteries of 11 inch guns, five of 155 mm., four of 75-150 mm. That was if we reached our firing line at all. Between us and it were an unknown quantity of E-boats, destroyers, bombers, torpedo planes, glider bombs, mines.

Speed is the destroyer's safeguard. Our quarter inch steel skin would hardly stop .50-cal. machine gun bullet. Speed is the destroyer's answer. But our orders prohibited speed. They called for the incredible shuffle. We were to be clay pigeons, drawing the enemy's fire for spotting by the large warships behind us. Our weapons were simply our guns—Guns—and the guts of the officers and men of this ship.

On Friday morning, the morning before we sailed, one of our sister ships was laying 9 to 1 against our coming out whole at the end of D

Day.

The contrast between this peace and the war we faced was made more striking by the sailboats which cruised leisurely among the massed warships in the harbor.

We were anchored off shore. Land still seemed only a handshake away. Yet all aboard this ship, knew that the French coast would be even closer to us at 6 o'clock one D Day morning.

Everyone aboard showed in some way or another that there was an uncomfortable tight knot in the middle of his stomach. Everyone showed it except our skipper, Comdr. Granville A. Moore, a phlegmatic Virginian whose soft voice could hardly be heard at the back of the pilot house even when we were in action.

Most of us hid our nervousness with slightly strained wisecracks. Every second remark seemed to have a double meaning. All sorts of cracks greeted the radio's announcement of the tune "After You've Gone". Boasting drowned out the last two words of someone's would-be cheery: "We'll go down in history."

It wasn't a good thing to think about what was ahead. Most people made no bones about doing something to keep from thinking about it. But the subject was on top of everyone's mind. It kept cropping up at the slightest provocation. A plaque on the wardroom wall: "Pick out the biggest ship and fire" brought forth the hope that the enemy had also read this order which Capt. Moran of the U. S. S. BOISE gave off Guadalcanal. Needless to say, we were not the biggest ship in the assault force.

No one wanted any of the Allied force to get hit. But fear is acutely personal, and if some one has to get it, you hope it isn't going to be you.

Conversely, probably as never before all of us were intensely conscious of the fact that we were part of a team. If the air corps failed in its pre-dawn bombing, we didn't stand a chance against the shore batteries. If failed, the army did not stand a chance. We took some bitter comfort in thinking that our job wasn't as tough as that of the army's first assault waves. There was comfort, too, in the very boldness of the operational plan.

Each of us worried about a different danger. Some feared mines the most. Others remembered the Luftwaffe and worried most about air attacks. I was most scared of the shore batteries.

On and off during the day, conversation and thoughts took a completely serious turn. There were church services in the afternoon, there was a long, serious discussion on why we're fighting. Wives, families and homes occupied much of the conversation.

All men busied themselves in preparation—many of them useless, already made preparations, but a sure way to keep from thinking about tomorrow. In the evening there was a movie. Officers and men alike acted like adolescents, letting off steam under the strain. Let's not think about it Tomorrow we sail. Somehow strangely, when we get started the tension will be gone.

Now I know what fighting men throughout the ages have felt on the eve of battle. There's a knot in the stomach, and something of a lump in the throat. It's fear. Fear, not cowardice.

The danger ahead assumes very personal proportions. The danger unconsciously forces men to look at the past because it's too unpleasant to look at the future.

And the warrior, being essentially shy, is embarrassed by his serious thoughts and his fears. He seeks a cover in over boisterousness and forced jokes, but deep down inside he's afraid.

That's how the men on this ship felt. That's how they felt deep down inside. Yet there was never a split second's question about steaming this fragile craft into the jaws of the Fortress of Europe.

That is how it is with courageous men.

Dear Mr. Semmler:

Please excuse my boldness in sending this poem to you, 2 of my poems have already been published by you, "On Guard" and "The Beauty of a Rose" for which I offer my sincerest thanks. This "Bombed Dams" was written immediately following the disaster, 1943.

BOMBED DAMS'

by Ray C. Murray

Mohne and Eden were bombed last night.....

Fifty thousand were homeless.....

An awful plight..... Those were the two Dams..... you read about

Those are two....Germany.... will have to do without.....

T'was the biggest "single blow"..... Since the beginning of the war

German morale is bound to be low..... Tonight....more than likely....she'll be bombed like before..... Bomb upon bomb will continue to fall

"Unconditional surrender" only..... insures a lasting "Peace" for all..

Mediterranean skies'.... the allies command.....

Axis Pilots can't seem.....to supply their demand!.....

bigger blow..... That's all I can tell you, that's all I know!

Pvt. Ray C. Murray

TINIAN, Marianas Islands, (Delayed)—The order was explicit. Hungry

Marines, seeking relief from the monotony of field rations, were forbidden henceforth to kill any livestock found roaming at large. But, where there's a will, etc.

A Marine approached his commanding officer and reported, "Sir, I was attacked by a pig." Since it was a clear case of self-defense, and the officer disliked waste, there was nothing else for him to say, except, "Save me a piece."

DONNA LYNN KOLBER HAS A BIRTHDAY

Donna Lynn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Leo Kolber, Mont-real, and granddaughter of Mrs. D. Kolber of Mokena has just passed her 3rd birthday and her grandmother wanted to surprise her by having her picture in the paper, so here it is.

Miss Catherine Bruder is enjoying a vacation thru the southern states.

Mr. Fedele Laffredo of Chicago has purchased the Marschki home on Wolf road.

Mr. Geo. Marti has purchased the Lorenz home on Front street occupied by the Francis Rinke family.

Mr. and Mrs. Willy Muehler have moved into the vacant meat market of Martin Muehler.

Mrs. Howard Gorham and mother, Mrs. Kate Cooper were dinner guests last Friday evening of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Semmler and family.

Mrs. Hugo Neithammer spent a few days this week in the home of her uncle Harrison Haley in Kempton.

IN MEMORIAM

KOLBER—David. In loving memory of our beloved husband and father who died September 25, 1931: Gone is the face we loved so dear, Silent is the voice we loved to hear, Too far away for sight or speech, But not too far for thought to reach; Sweet to remember him who once was here And who, tho absent, is just as dear. MRS. DAVID KOLBER AND SON

Dr. E. G. McMahan, in company with Dr. B. Kline of Joliet, returned last Tuesday from a fishing trip at Spider Lake, Wis. They brought back evidence of good fishing as they had bass, and other variety including a 36 inch muskie.

Guests of Dr. and Mrs. E. G. McMahan Sunday at a muskie fish dinner were: Mr. and Mrs. Fred Whitlark and family, Miss Emilie Thorn of Joliet and Cadet Frederick Whitlark of Chicago.

Mrs. L. G. Bruder and Mrs. Hugo Neithammer attended the opening meeting Wednesday of the Tinley Park Woman's Club in Tinley Park.

Mrs. E. G. McMahan returned last Thursday from a visit spent with her sister, Mrs. Alvin Marti and family at Arkdale, Wis.

The name of Elmer Benson was erroneously listed in the delinquent tax list as publish in last week's paper.

Mr. and Mrs. Clarence Lauffer of Tinley Park are the parents of a daughter born Sept. 17 at Silver Cross hospital, Joliet.

Mrs. Bert Spiess was reminded of her birthday Tuesday evening when a family group surprised her by gathering in her home. Pinocchio was played. Those present were: Mr. and Mrs. Harold Spiess, Mr. and Mrs. Alvie Spiess, Mr. and Mrs. Harvey Spiess and Mr. and Mrs. Walter Spiess and their families.

Don't forget the Turkey Supper in St. John's Ev. Church at Mokena next Wednesday evening, Oct. 4 from 4:30 to 7:30 o'clock.

AUXILIARY TO VFW NEWS

After the card party Sept. 30, there will be a Bake Sale. All Auxiliary members are asked to please bring something for this sale.

All Auxiliary members having dime plates are asked to kindly bring them to the next meeting Oct. 5th, as the money from these plates are needed for the Boy's Christmas boxes.

The visit to the Kankakee hospital originally planned for Sept. 26th has been postponed until Oct. 3rd at which time there will be a bingo party for the boys.

ORLAND PARK

by Mrs. S. S. Knox

Mrs. Gustie Hallinan, Mrs. Karl Ekberg, Mrs. Henry Klotz, Mrs. Herman Niccoli and Mrs. Herman Utte members of a Pinochle club, enjoyed a dinner and movie show in Chicago Monday nite.

Members of the Orland Park Fire Department and their wives entertained the Clarence Stigers family at a farewell party Saturday evening, September 23 at the Geo. Steinhagen home. Cards were enjoyed by all and refreshments were served. Mr. and Mrs. Stigers have sold their home in Orland Park and have purchased a farm home in Wayland, Michigan and will be moved by the end of this week.

Mr. Steinhagen is the fire chief of the department.

Mr. and Mrs. Arch Kay, Mr. and Mrs. Chas. Breitbarth and Mr. and Mrs. Robert Horn spent Sunday afternoon visiting at the home of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. Loebe at Calumet City Ill.

Mrs. Robert Horn is spending a few days at the home of her sister, Mrs. Joseph Gravelle in Chicago.

The Pageant of American Laws, presented by the American Citizenship Department of the Woman's club for the Palos Park Woman's club last Thursday afternoon in the Village hall was well attended. After the meeting and the pageant, members of the Palos club served refreshments. Orland Park Woman's club was represented by the President, Mrs. Harry Pihl, Mrs. Ralph Town, Mrs. Karl Ekberg and Mrs. Sherman Knox.

Mrs. Jefferson Ludwig has been a patient under observation, at the Silver Cross hospital, Joliet.

James Davidson, son of Mrs. Thos. Davidson, who is with the SeaBees, has enjoyed a 15 day leave visiting his mother, relatives and friends. He has returned to his duties in Bermuda.

Pvt. Owen Creer who is in the Infantry, has written that he is in a hospital in Italy and that he is getting along nicely. Owen was flown from France to the hospital in Italy.

The Bake and Food Sale sponsored by the Legion Auxiliary held last Saturday in Creer's Store for the purpose of raising additional money for Christmas gifts for the boys of Orland township in the armed forces, proved a huge success. The Pres., Mayme Estand and the committee, Elsie Yunker and Mollie Reish in charge of the sale, wish to express their thanks and appreciation to the members and friends for their generous donations to the sale.

Mayme Estand, Elsie Yunker, Mollie Reish, Mabel Ekberg, Laura Cooper, Clara Myrick, Edna Doctor; Vera Farn, Hilda Cox, Martha Rauch and Lillian Knox attended the Legion Auxiliary Board meeting, Friday nite at the home of Mary Marrs in Worth. After the meeting, Mrs. Marrs and her mother Mrs. Martin served a delightful lunch.

Two Orland Park girls have been made very happy the past week. Sgt. Wm. McAleer, son of Mr. and Mrs. Wm. McAleer presented Miss Carolyn Brennan, daughter of Judge and Mrs. Ray Brennan with a beautiful diamond ring. Miss Marie Heiting, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Heiting received a beautiful diamond ring from Sgt. Warren Townsend, son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter Townsend. Both of the boys are home on furlough after having served overseas for the past 2 years or more. No definite plans for a wedding will be made until after the war is over. Congratulations.

Mr. Louis Webber and Mr. Chas. Blood were guests at the Earl B. Sayers home on Friday nite. Mr. Blood and Mr. Webber are from Rantoul, Ill.

Mrs. Mae Sayers had a letter from her son Wm. Mutsch that his address is changed. He has been well and hopes all his friends will keep on writing to him. His new address can be had by contacting his mother as we are not allowed to publish servicemen's addresses who are overseas.

Mr. and Mrs. Earl Sayers, and Mr. and Mrs. Frank Colangelo and family also Mrs. Sally Samson went to the wedding of Mr. Colangelo's nephew Sunday, in Chicago.

Mr. and Mrs. Frank Sayers, Mr. and Mrs. Ed Maning and family were guests of Miss Iva Hanson of Chicago Sunday. In the afternoon they went to the Garfield Conservatory and say the flowers were beautiful.

IN MEMORIAM

STELTER MINNIE—In loving memory of our dear wife and mother who passed away October 4, 1942.

Two years have passed since that sad day

The one we loved was called away,

God took her home; it was his will

But in our hearts she liveth still.

The blow was hard, the shock severe

We didn't think her death so near

Only those who have lost, can tell

The pain of parting without farewell.

HARVEY COOPER, Clerk

EDW. SCHMAEDEKE, Auctioneer

WHO is the top fighter in the world, pound for pound? This query covers many years, in addition to the present calendar.

On the human side our selection has always been Harry Greb—a 160-pound whirlwind who in ring contests or training periods practically wrecked such stars as Gene Tunney, Jack Dempsey, Tom Gibbons and Jack Dillon.

I am referring to the Greb that had two eyes, when he first wrecked Tunney and Gibbons and when he completely bewildered Jack Dempsey with his speed in a training spot.

My friend Frank Buck goes on beyond Greb or Stan Ketchel, Joe Gans or the pick of the human lot. Buck nominates the Wolverine—a 35 or 40-pound terror from Michigan and a few other northern midwestern states.

"The Wolverine, pound for pound, is the world's gamest and greatest fighter," Buck says.

"The Badger is tough, but not quite that tough. You know even a 250-pound bear doesn't match any part of the Wolverine—who is not only fast and strong, but who likes to fight. I can't think of any animal who won't give the Wolverine the right of way. What he could do to a 100-pound police dog wouldn't even be close. I can't think of a dog that a 35-pound Wolverine wouldn't wreck in a few minutes."

Our knowledge of Wolverines had been largely limited to Michigan football teams. These also haven't been any too soft. But they haven't quite been able to match their namesakes since a team known as Minnesota's Gophers have annoyed them no little in recent years.

In animal parlance the Gopher is no great killer. But he is something different on a football field.

I asked Dr. Buck just why a Wolverine is so tough. "Every part of him is tough," Frank said, "including teeth, claws, and especially heart."

World's Best Fighter

I tried to pin Buck down to naming the world's greatest fighting animal.

This naturally leaves the human out unless you give him a gun. The human is a rather puny animal when he isn't armed. Twenty or thirty animals would outclass him on even terms.

Among the best of the animal breed Mr. Buck includes the elephant, the gorilla, the tiger, the lion, the leopard, the grizzly and the big python.

"The elephant is just too big," he says. "But one of the greatest fights ever known would be between a tiger or a lion thrown against the grizzly bear. They would be well-matched in weight. The grizzly is much stronger than either a tiger or a lion. He isn't as quick but he has a thick, protecting coating of hair around the throat. But either a tiger or a lion would have to get him in a hurry or lose the decision. And I don't think either could get him in a hurry."

"What about the grizzly, lion or tiger against a big python?" I asked. Buck had brought back a python that measured 29 feet.

"You may remember," he said, "that in the python-tiger fight picture I made, the python was on the winning side. I wouldn't want to bet on any animal against a big python. I saw one kill a leopard in just a few seconds."

Gorillas Tough, Too

Then we began talking about Gargantua, the big circus gorilla. How would he come out against anything except an elephant?

Mr. Buck admitted that Gargantua would be something to stop. Big, powerful, fast and vicious—some 600 pounds of dynamite—Gargantua would be no pushover against tiger, lion or grizzly.

We are offering these vital statistics to those who keep asking how Louis and Dempsey, or how Tunney and Corbett would come out in a swinging bout.

Our answer is that Louis, Dempsey, Tunney and Corbett would be completely outclassed by any grizzly, lion, tiger, gorilla, python or king cobra in any hand-to-hand or fang-to-fang collision.

Gene Tunney still thinks that a good fighter can lick a gorilla. I don't think Greb, Tunney, Dempsey and Louis together could handle Gargantua.

Best Football Teams

"Which section of the country on a general average produces the stronger football teams?"

This is one of the favorite queries you get from service mail where men from every section are thrown together around the world. This includes the East, the Midwest, the South, the Southwest, and the Far West.

My guess would be the Midwest, which includes the Big Nine and Notre Dame.

Washington, D. C.

CONGRESSMEN TO LONDON
Without any publicity, the British government has quietly moved to improve British good will by arranging air transportation for six congressmen to London. They will inspect the damage done by the robot blitz and take side trips into France.

The British embassy did not actually invite the congressmen to come to England, but made a point of letting three Republicans and three Democrats know that seats on British planes leaving New York for London were available.

First pair to go were Representatives James Richards, South Carolina Democrat, and Karl Mundt, South Dakota Republican. They were followed by Democratic Congressman Brooks Hays of Arkansas and Republican Walter Judd of Minnesota. The latter trip may be significant since it occurred only a few days after these two had introduced their resolution calling for bi-partisan consideration of the peace terms by this country.

The last pair includes Republican Walt Horan of Washington and Democrat Chet Holifield of California. Holifield, incidentally, was planning a quick trip overseas in order to check on some lend-lease matters for the house Democratic leadership. Each pair consists of one Republican and one Democrat, with the British determined to do all they can to prevent inter-party strife in the U.S.A. from interfering with the peace conference.

The congressmen were told by the British: "We have already been host to several American scientists and educators for brief trips across, and we don't like to discriminate against congressmen."

ALLIED SKI TROOPS

For the first time in the war, Canadian and American ski troops are due to see the sort of action they were trained for.

The first special service force, trained in mountain warfare at Helena, Mont., and in Alaska and the Aleutians, is now in southern France with the forces of General Patch. A thrust across the Maritime Alps into northern Italy will give them their first actual skiing action. This special service force includes both Canadians and Americans, and will probably come up against German rear-guard units as the Allied armies chase the Nazis toward the Brenner pass.

ELECTION IN BRITAIN

British government leaders aren't saying anything about it, but Roosevelt has been tipped off by Churchill that immediately after the fall of Germany a general election will be held in England.

In fact, Churchill's Conservative party leaders have already sent instructions down to their borough leaders to begin organizing for a national election.

Churchill's party strategists have already had conferences with leaders of the Labor party and have sought their support for a continuation of a future coalition government. The Labor leaders of the Churchill cabinet, however, have said no. They believe that after the war, Labor should go on its own.

Conservative leaders, however, figure that the rank and file of the Labor party will not follow their leaders but, instead, will follow Churchill.

Churchill's move in calling the general election immediately after the armistice is considered very shrewd timing. Today he is popular in England. A few months from now he may not be. The British prime minister will stand on his war record, and his cooperation with Roosevelt will not be played down as one reason why he should be returned to power. It is expected that the Conservative party will win without too much difficulty.

NAZIS IN SPAIN

Once again Nazi troops are making for Spanish soil. Members of the army which got its first taste of war seven years ago by putting Franco in Madrid, today are stealing through the French countryside below Bordeaux to be interned in Spain rather than be captured by the Fighting French. This was why the Spanish ambassador in Washington last week issued his statement barring Nazi exiles.

However, a real test of U. S.-Spanish policy is in the making. Some Nazi military men are already in Spain, plus French collaborationists who will later be charged with war crimes against France. It will be up to U. S. Ambassador Carlton Hayes, apologist for the Franco government, to deal with them.

CAPITAL CHAFF

GI Joes are plenty peeved over the army's mustering-out pay program. Canada gives its discharged men $100 for clothing, plus $9 for each month's service.

GI Joes are writing the war department that most men will need an entirely new wardrobe costing their total mustering-out pay.

Officers receive extra pay for all the time-off they are entitled to when they leave the service. . . . GIs want to draw their furlough pay when they leave the army too.

Early and Proper Marketing Urged

Prompt Cattle Sale Urged as Necessity

Farmers are urged to give some consideration to their cattle marketing plans for the remainder of the year. Because of possible market glut, M. P. Mitchell, at Purdue university, calls to their attention the following points:

1. Low grade beef cattle may be sent to market soon, before western cattle begin to move in volume. This would include cull aged cows of both the beef and dairy types, grazing cattle that are not to be grain fed nor kept for breeding, and, in some cases, surplus breeding cattle that are now on farms in excess of the farm's normal carrying capacity.

2. Although beef cattle prices under the controls now in force may not behave normally, there are good reasons for expecting prices of most grades of cattle, except the better grades of grain fed cattle, to work to lower levels. This is especially true at the time that markets reach a glutted condition, in late summer and autumn.

3. Cattle now on grain feed probably will continue in a strong relative price position for the remainder of this year. However, costs of gains in the feed lot are high relative to market values. There is, therefore, not a great deal of inducement for feeders to hold such cattle for further price advances. Grain fed cattle, because of their scarcity, undoubtedly will be less affected by market gluts than the plainer grades of cattle on the market. Grain fed cattle will continue in strong demand.

Agriculture In the News

Cotton Goes to War

Approximately 11,000 different items made of cotton are helping the U. S. army and navy fight. Cotton is used for gun camouflage and shelters, truck tarpaulins, munitions, all types of uniforms including ski and air suits, blankets, sleeping bags, parachutes for dropping supplies by air, tents, cord in tires for military vehicles, hammocks, fishing nets, helmet linings, plane parts, self-sealing gasoline tanks for planes, life rafts, and scores of other items.

A major part of the total national cotton production is currently going to equip Uncle Sam's fighting men.

Although some low grade cotton can be used, most of the articles mentioned require a high grade. Reports on production, supply and carry-over indicate that the United States is producing more cotton than is needed in grades below "middling," and needs to build up the production of the better grades.

The cotton crop last year totaled 11,478,000 bales from 21,874,000 acres with the yield averaging 252 pounds per acre.

An average cow gives 4,700 pounds of milk a year which is enough to furnish four men in uniform their daily allotment of milk, butter, cheese and evaporated milk.

Parasites Controlled

Phenothiazine, synthetic coal-tar chemical, in less than five years has won first place among drugs used for removing internal parasites from farm animals. Experimental work has proved that this remedy is effective against six species of worm parasites of sheep and goats, four species in cattle, two in swine, one in poultry, and numerous roundworms of horses. In addition it is partially effective against several other parasites of livestock.

SNAPPY FACTS ABOUT RUBBER

Consumption of reclaimed rubber in the United States increased more than 50 per cent from 1940 to 1943. Reclaimed rubber may frequently be used in the manufacture of the same articles from which it was reclaimed.

In 1943 gasoline and motor vehicle tax revenues combined accounted for nearly 30 per cent of the total state revenues.

Next year will mark the thirtieth anniversary of the use of motor vehicles in the rural free delivery mail service. Rubber-tired mail cars had a bearing on the passing of the first federal aid highway law in 1916.

"All officers and men will advance to kill or be killed"

THIS IS NO DREAMED-UP HEADLINE—no "tone poem" conceived on an inspired typewriter. It's the way the army explains the command "Fix bayonets—charge!" Only the Infantry has it put to them in these words. As one doughboy said:

"I'll remember those eleven words the rest of my life."

Remember? How can he forget them? They describe the climax of the Infantryman's assault—they describe the most cold-blooded action on a battlefield. Yet Infantry officers and men have advanced, countless times, to kill or be killed . . . at Saratoga . . . at New Orleans . . . the Argonne . . . New Guinea . . . Salerno. There's no rescinding of this order—no retreating—no nothing but plain killing.

Right now, the men of the Infantry are closing in for the final kill. They're advancing every day—advancing to the order of "kill or be killed." Remember this the next time you see a doughboy on furlough. Remember this the next time you almost forget to write that letter. Remember it till your dying day. You can't pay the doughboy back—but at least you can be forever mindful of his role in this fight for freedom.

"Keep your eye on the Infantry—THE DOUGHBOY DOES IT!"

SAVED THOUSANDS OF DOLLARS

Taxpayers of the Country Towns have been saved thousands of dollars. This is a result of a resolution introduced by County Commissioner Busse and seconded by Commissioner Jack Mackler at a meeting of the County Board held on September 20, which provided that all non-pauper patients who have not sufficient money or relatives to pay for their care in the County Hospital be paid by the County and not by the respective Townships in which they reside.

In the past the County Board has been paying the expenses of non-pauper patients of the City of Chicago in the Township of Cicero but not for other Townships of the Country Towns.

As a result of the passage of this resolution, in the future, all expenses on non-pauper cases sent to the County Hospital where the individual does not have sufficient money or relatives to pay, the charges will be borne by the County Board.

A SIAMESE PIG

A Siamese twin pig farrowed Monday morning, September 18 on the farm of Warren Richmond, Geneseo, was brought into Geneseo high school agricultural department by Richmond and later preserved by Mr. White, instructor in biology. The pig was born with eight legs, two tails, two eyes, one mouth, four ears, and one head. Division started at the base of the skull. The body was attached breast to breast.

It will be kept as an exhibit by the Biology and Agriculture departments. This freak of nature birth is very rare.
